The band was inspired by World Ocean Day. Of course, some actions are also made outside this day, but the Baret Explorers wish to insist on this ecological symbol to reinforce communication around the preservation of marine ecosystems.

In this way, Baret Explorers has contacted several NGOs to take care of the Bay of Authie on their own scale. The message was slightly different. Of course the usual message of "everyone just has to do their part and the sea will be clean" is true, but it seems difficult to perceive what "their part" represents.

So to figure this out more easily, and so that everyone can better put themselves into action, Baret Explorers communicated on a Planetoscope calculation : with 634 tons of plastic dumped into the oceans every second, each person has to collect 50 kilos of plastic per week.

That's a lot, but it gives an idea.

The group thanks SEA SHEPHERD, GREENPEACE, the SURFRIDER FOUNDATION, the LIGUE pour la PROTECTION des OISEAUX, Les Echos du Touquet - Journal de Montreuil - Le Réveil de Berck, Mona FM, Radio 6 - all the participants and residents of the region.

They relayed the information and answered the call of the Baret Explorers, and on April 10, 2019, it was a good day of cleaning, and very educative too, as shown in our video with an explanation of the waste collected.
